with a certain vote in the West Virginia Convention on a certain resolution, doe it not thereby admit that the application on its part of the term "liar" to the Hon. W.T. Willey, in connection with its denial that the resolution he had read from the Journal of the Convention was to be the world?

THE MAINE ELECTION.

How Will the State Vote in November MARSHALL COUNTY, Sept. 24, 1880.

for the State election draws near, and the Republicaus of Marshall county were ever better organized than at present. They have got their "mad up" since the news from Maine, and they will show in construction of the same kind of business, only done in a different way, as was meant from 1861 to 1865. There has been much said about a Maine, as to its effect on the result in the Concher States sto. Parkans the opinion October States, etc. Perhaps the opinion of one who never made politics much of atill with your leave I will give it. I do not think that the resuit in Maine ought to influence the national ticket at all. The auses that brought about the result there conspired against the Republicans there. From the best information obtainable, the business boom which is making good times in nearly every section of our broad land, has not struck that far off land as The great interest of Maine is ship ouilding, and it has not as yet felt the very strong hold on many of the people there, and strange as it may appear, these are nearly all Republicans. The Repub lean party there, as in nearly all States, where one party holds the power for many years in succession, has been run too much in the interest of a ring, and this driven many from the party. These be called soreheads, but they never-se vote just as well and as hard as with other causes have conspired These with other causes have conspired against the success of the Republican party. The great mass of the Greenback party in Maine are bitterly oposed to the triumph of the Democratic party, and in November thousands of them will vote for Garfield, who voted against the Republican party at the late election. Garfield will doubtless get the electoral vote of can party at the late election. Garfield will doubtless get the electoral vote of Maine. Now, the plain duty is to go to work. It is silent, solid work we need and must have. Every Republican who has the least particle of influence must use that influence for the success of these principles we believe to be eternal. Can we expect anything of West Virginia? Can anything good come out of Nazareth? Certainly it can. We may not carry the State, but we can so reduce the Bourbon majority that it will prepare us to join the Republican column in November. We do not naturally belong to the Solid South. All our interests are with the great North, and if all our noble hearted voters would vote their honest convictions, aside from party, we would give a handsom majority even in October for the great party and principles of freedom.

Torchlight processions, great demon-

for the great party and principles of freedom.

Torchlight processions, great demonstrations of the masses, and firing of cannon, may do some good, but it is quiet work, if any, that influences the careless voter. Let his work be made effectual.

The great hope of the Democratic party is that the soldier vote will be given to Hancock. How any Union soldier who still loves the principles for which he fought can for a moment think even of voting the Democratic ticket is more than Register man right, we will say that it was his reporter that slept with Col. Ben instead of the Istrationacces's reporter staying with Mr. Hutchinson. It was Col. Ben who had his spectre out. It was Colonel Ben who slipped off on the 6 o'clock train for fear Mr. Hutchinson would again reiterate his challenge for joint discussion. It was Colonel Ben who backed squarely down when he came to face his antogonist on the stage. It was Colonel Ben that would not stand by the agreement entered into by the joint com-

During the day the stars and stripes were flung to the breeze and some firing of

An Inquiry from the Second District.

Have we a Governor? If so why doe he not exercise the functions which the Constitution imposes upon him? Since the first of May we have literally been without a Judge in this judicial circuit. It is true Judge Hoge did not resign his office until about the first of August, but his canvass for Congress withdrew him from the circuit at an earlier period. The Constitution contemplates that there shall be no vacancy in the judicial office. Thence the power conferred upon the Governor to fill the vacancy. Many acts are done in vacation of the highest importance to smitors, injunctions granted or dissolved, receivers appointed, or accounts reterred to a commissioner, etc. Of all these we have been deprived by the non-action of the Governor. wait until after the October election? If so, will he commission the person elected? If Wisner, the Republican candidate, is elected will he commission him to fill the vacancy? If Grove, the Independent Democratic Greenback candidate, is elected will he commission him? We are really at a loss to comprehend the dilatory action of our Governor. Publius.—Berkeley Springs, Morgan Co.

still loves the principles for which he fought can for a moment think even of voting the Democratic ticket is more than I can imagine. We as soldiers cannot vote for the bite when we see that it hides the gray beneath it. I have yet to find a Republican soldier who will vote for liancock.

THATJONY DISCUSSION.

How it is regarded up in Ennecock County.

NEW CUMBERLAND, September 23.
Editors Intelligencer:

The Register is determined to give Col. Ben Wilson all the glory he so ignobly failed to get here last Tuesday night. They say "for downright faisification the Investigations." So far as we, as well as the best clitizens of the community, of both political parties are able to judge, the INTELLIGENCER's report of that discussion was even in advance of that journal's habitual exagerations." So far as we, as well as the best clitizens of the community, of both political parties are able to judge, the INTELLIGENCER's report of the meeting was a fair and bonest report, and that of the Republican fold. Dr. Cowgill, of Florida, visited the National Committee Rooms yesterday. He thought there was no doubt of the Republicans carrying the State, with a free ballot and a fair count, by a majority ranging above 1,000. He expressed a belief in the Lairness of the State Electoral Board, and as to the county officers, the Republicaus would watch them as carefully as possible. He thought the situation in Florida was different from that in most of the Southern States, there being so many settlers there from the Northern States.
Garfield and Arthur were popular there,
he said, and the Electoral ticket would undoubtedly run ahead of the State ticket.

BISHOP SIMPSON'S ILLNESS .- San Fran cisco papers give this account of the attack of illness, suffered a week ago Sun day, by Bishop Simpson, in the pulpit of the First M. E. Church of that city.

Bishop Simpson began his sermon in disard tones, and said slowly: "The reader of history is oftentimes startled with the littleness of the agencies which produce great results. Joseph was almost placed upon the throne of Egypt by a dream. Had Eather been a little less beautiful, all the Laws in the Visualon of Abanasan upon the throne of Egypt by a dream. Had Esther been a little less beautiful, all the Jews in the kingdom of Ahasuerus had been destroyed. Pascal, in the same vein, shrewdy observes somewhere that if the nose of Cleopatra had been half an inch shorter, the face of all Europe would have been changed." He had not proceeded much further in his discourse when he suddenly paused, raised a handkerchief to his lips and turned deathly pale. "I am not sure that I shall be able to finish this sermon," he said with effort, and then to quiet the apprehension of the congregation he grasped the reading desk with both hands and added: "I was sick lastinght, but I thought once I got started I should warm up to the work and get on, but I am not well. If the congregation will kindly sing a verse or two, I may feel better and be able to go on." He fell back into a chair and was soon removed to the parsonage, the symptoms being those of malarial chill.

The President and Mrs. Hayes were present.
